She mentioned that puberty & adolescent age group female are facing major or minor difficulties related to menstruation. However, menstruation management is still a "Subject of Silence" and discussion on this topic among women or between mother & daughter is very limited. She explained problems of adolescent female like Premenstrual Syndrome, Leucorrhoea and Menstrual Irregularity. During her session she also discussed about PCOS and obesity. She explained that PCOS is a complex hormonal disturbance that affects the entire body. It can affect all females - from adolescence to post menopause - Mainly 15 to 30 yrs of age 25.88 % women in India and it is the Leading cause of Infertility. Hormonal imbalance also leads to weight gain. She advised to go for doctor if there is any change in normal pattern of menstruation because if PCOS is not treated it leads to pelvic inflammatory disorder. Early diagnosis and treatment can help in control of the symptoms and prevent health related problems. She explained that the holistic approach with diet modification, yoga, mental relaxation, Homeopathic or Ayurvedic management and proper lifestyle can only bring Hormones in Harmony.
